We Must Train As We Fight

Our troops need to train in settings similar to the real combat environments they will find themselves in. This ensures that when called upon, their fighting skills are second nature.

Training on the Colorado River

Crossing the Saddam Canal, Iraq

Maintaining A Natural Environment Is Critical

Our fighting men and women must train in realistic, natural environments. Our commitment to healthy, well-managed natural resources will provide realistic training today and into the future.

Linking DoD And The State

DoD's Regional Environmental Coordinators focus on working cooperatively with state rule-writers and legislators to help maintain realistic training environments. This proactive approach provides solutions that help ensure military readiness.

Sustaining Readiness In Partnership With States

DoD IN SOUTH CAROLINA

National Guard and other Reserve Components

The Guard and Reserve organize, train, and equip citizen soldiers/airmen to ensure their rapid mobilization for duties within the state, nation and around the world. While all Reserve Components have a federal mission to augment active duty forces in times of crises, the Guard has the additional, unique mission of serving the Governor during state emergencies. Guard and Reserve units are stationed throughout the state.

Fort Jackson

With over 52,000 acres of land, including over 100 ranges and field training sites, Fort Jackson is the largest, most active Initial Entry Training Center in the Army. More than 45,000 individual basic and advanced Soldiers are trained at Fort Jackson annually, which equates to 34% of all Soldiers and 69% of women entering the Army each year.

Shaw Air Force Base

Shaw is one of the largest military bases in the U.S. and home to over 5,400 military and civilian employees. Shaw houses the Air Force's largest combat F-16 Wing and the 20th Fighter Wing, which provides and sustains combat-ready air power. The base is also home to the Headquarters Ninth Air Force and U.S. Central Command Air Forces, whose primary mission is to project decisive air and space power for the U.S. Central Command.

Marine Corps Air Station Beaufort /Naval Hospital

MCAS Beaufort (Fightertown) is the home of the Marine Corps' Atlantic Coast fixed-wing, fighter-attack aircraft assets. The Air Station consists of 6,900 acres and is home to seven Marine Corps F/A-18 squadrons, including three versions of the F/A-18 Hornet. Nearly 1300 Marines, Sailors and civilian personnel ensure approximately 3,400 personnel of Marine Air Group 31 and its component squadrons and tenant units are readily deployable.

Naval Support Activity Charleston

Formerly Naval Weapons Station Charleston, and located on the west bank of the Cooper River, the base encompasses more than 17,000 acres of land. NSA Charleston has 10,000 acres of forest and wetlands, 16-plus miles of waterfront, four deep-water piers, 38.2 miles of railroad, and 292 miles of road. The current workforce numbers over 11,000 with an additional 3,600 people in on-base family housing.

Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island

Marines have trained on Parris Island during every major conflict of the 20th century. Guided by the core values of honor, courage and commitment, training at Parris Island mentally, physically and morally transforms about 17,000 qualified men and women into U.S. Marines every year. The Depot consists of 8,095 acres; 3,262 are habitable, and the remaining acres are primarily salt marsh.

Joint Base Charleston

The Joint Base Charleston community includes more than 20,000 active-duty, Reserve and civilian personnel. The host unit of the Joint base is the 628th Air Base Wing, which has two operational groups consisting of 13 squadrons and one wing staff directorate. The Air Base Wing's primary duty is to provide base support for approximately 80,000 personnel, including active-duty and Reserve military, government employees, contractors and civilians.
